THE ASSOCIATION FOR ASIAN STUDIES

1 LANE HALL

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN

48109

The Association for Asian Studies is the largest society of its kind in the world. It counts among its members scholars, business people, diplomats, journalists, and interested lay persons.

The Association for Asian Studies was founded in 1941, originally as publisher of the Far Eastern Quarterly. It has gone through a series of reorganizations to serve better the broadening disciplinary and geographical interests of its membership. In 1970 four elective area Councils—South Asia, Southeast Asia, China and Inner Asia, and Northeast Asia—were established to guarantee each area constituency its own representation and a proportionate voice on the Board of Directors. In 1977 a Council of Conferences was established as a liaison with several conferences throughout the United States which serve the needs of scholars of Asian studies in different parts of the country. The Association is a member of the American Council of Learned Societies, actively participating with its sister societies in a wide range of activities, including joint participation in research, computerized abstracts and informational exchanges.

PROFESSIONAL MEETINGS

The Association holds a three-day national meeting annually in the spring which is devoted to planned programs of scholarly papers, round table discussions and panel sessions on a wide range of problems in research and teaching, and on Asian affairs in general. The Association also helps to support eight annual regional conferences throughout the United States for scholars and teachers concerned with Asian studies. From time to time it sponsors, through its committees, special conferences on research problems and other matters of topical interest.
