International Peoples Tribunal on Human Rights and the Environment (Sustainable Development in the Context of Globalization)

"The International People's Tribunal," held at the United Nations the past two years in coordination with the UN Conference on Sustainable Development and follow-up to the RIO Conference on the Environment. The focus is on the impact of globalization on peoples and the environment. The cases that have been presented so far are extremely interesting and have potential legal case status for the Universities Law Schools.

Disney, K-Mart, Nike, and Wal-Mart on charges that these corporations had committed "grave violations of labor law and labor rights", "grave violations of women's rights", and "grave violations of the public trust". The corporations were subpoenaed, but failed to appear for their arraignment. The organizers of the Tribunal arranged for surrogates, appropriately attired and masked, to sit in the bar in their place.

the People's International Tribunal for Justice for Mumia Abu-Jamal
